Daily Legislative Update

Thursday, February 1, 2018

Today marks the official last day for committee reports in the first house. All filed bills not heard at this point will be dead for the session; however, topics from those bills can continue to be inserted (amended) into other moving legislation.

Next week will be a short week of session days as legislators take a break as bills move over to the second house for action. Both the Senate and House will be back in full swing on Monday, February 12.
