

Daily Legislative Update

Wednesday, January 30, 2019

If weather forecasts persist in Central Indiana, legislators will be waiting by their phones while dressed for the elements this morning. Yesterday, there were rumors of committees being cancelled due to today's weather, but nothing was made public by either chamber's leadership. As of now, all committees are still planning to meet as scheduled. You can expect agendas to be somewhat fluid today, so be sure to refresh the provided committee links throughout the day.

Assuming the weather holds off, today is poised to be the most active "committee day" to date this session. Both houses will get things started early with House Education, Transportation and Insurance Committees all gathering at 8:30AM and the Senate will commence with Judiciary at 9:00AM. Neither caucus will meet for session this afternoon.
