

Daily Legislative Update

Wednesday, March 13, 2019

As the temperature continues to rise outside, so does the pace of play within the Statehouse. It seems that we've made it through the worst this winter had to offer and can now look forward to brighter days and the homestretch of the 2019 legislative session!

Tuesday provided another opportunity for legislators to chip away at the large number of bills currently residing in each house. While the day may not have put a sizable dent in that large number, we did see a select few pass 3rd reading.

Upon adjournment, the Senate Appropriations committee heard from the State's Supreme Court, Dept. of Education and FSSA (Family & Social Services Association) who laid out their budgetary asks. Members will now deliberate and decide which line items to include in their chamber's version of the biennial budget.

No session meetings are on today's schedule, but we will see a total of 12 committees gathering throughout the day. House Education and Transportation committees kick off the day at 8:30AM, followed by the Senate's Judiciary and Health committees 30 minutes later. As always, these and all other committee meetings can be streamed online by using the links below.
