

Daily Legislative Update

Tuesday, March 26, 2019

The General Assembly returns this morning and will dive back in with a full committee and session agenda. As we mentioned yesterday, this week is packed with committee hearings and a laundry list of bills scheduled for 2nd and 3rd reading for each house, so expect meetings to run well over their standard times.

This was especially true for House members on Monday as their full chamber session crept into the evening hours while Representatives debated one another on a number of proposals. By days end, both houses sent another 18 bills through 3rd reading. We are now just two weeks away from the second half's first deadlines, so time is of the essence!

The House Employment and Human Affairs Committees get an early start this morning, gathering at 8:30AM. The Senate will follow with their Homeland Security at 9AM and Corrections & Tax/Fiscal both at 10AM. Both chambers will then meet for session in the 1:30PM time slot.
