

Daily Legislative Update

Thursday, March 28, 2019

With yesterday's completion, we're now less than a month away from "Sine Die" or the last day of the legislative session. It also means that there are just six session days that separate the General Assembly from committee report deadlines that will come for the House on April 9th, and the Senate two days later. Given that, we've seen amendments begin to flood committee rooms as interests from both inside and out of the Statehouse hope to get their language to the finish line. Expect this trend to continue all the way up to 2nd reading deadlines (April 11th for House, 15th for Senate).

Don't expect a short Thursday for legislators today given that roughly 50 bills are scheduled for 2nd/3rd reading or a vote of concurrence. Prior to that, House Agriculture and Elections Committees will gather at 8:30AM followed by the Senate's Appropriations and Commerce/Technology at 9 & 9:30AM. House members will then gather for a 10AM session and the Senate will follow at 1:30PM.
