

Daily Legislative Update

Thursday, April 4, 2019

The General Assembly returns this morning to wrap up Week 14 of the 2019 legislative session. It's been a busy week for legislators with committee report deadlines coming up next week and this type of workload is sure to continue the closer we get to Sine Die. By now, most committees have met for the final time this session, so the majority of debate will take place on the chamber floors and eventually conference committees. For up to date conference and floor schedules, please use the links provided below.

Like most Thursday's, today will provide a condensed schedule that allows legislators to head back home to their districts for the weekend to spend time with their families and their "real jobs". Prior to adjourning, the House Agriculture and Elections Committees will gather this morning at 8:30AM. The Senate's Appropriations and Local Government Committees will follow at 9 & 10AM respectively. The House will then meet for session at 10AM and the Senate later on at 1:30PM.
