

Daily Legislative Update

Friday, April 5, 2019

There will be no session today as legislators have adjourned for the weekend following yesterday's meetings. The House of Representatives now has just two days of committees left this session and will need to have all committee reports filed by Tuesday afternoon. Across the hall, Senate members will need to have reports submitted by next Thursday.

The real fun starts the following week which is when conference committees will begin to meet. Schedules will be fairly fluid throughout this process and are often times posted with little notice, so we will be updating you on when and where this information will be available.
