

Daily Legislative Update

Monday, April 8, 2019

The General Assembly returns to the State's capital this morning set for another busy week ahead. Today will be the final day before committee report deadlines arrive. Tomorrow all Senate bills in the House must be voted out of committee and reports must be filed on their behalf. The Senate must do the same with all House bills by this Thursday.

Thursday will also be the day that members of the Senate Appropriations Committee will be releasing their chamber's version of the biennial budget. Once the bill has been voted out of committee and clears 2nd & 3rd readings in the Senate, it will be sent to conference committee to have a number of discrepancies ironed out. The result will be the draft that is ultimately sent to Governor Holcomb's desk for signature. This legislation will be heavily debated during its stint in conference committee given that members from the opposite chamber, even those of the same party, often have very different ideas of how the State should allocate its funds.

As committee schedules continue to dwindle down, today there will be just four total set to meet. House Education will get the day started at 8:30AM followed by the Senate's Environmental Affairs Committee at 10AM. House Judiciary and Ways & Means Committees will then gather at 10:30AM. Both houses will close out the day with a 1:30PM session.
