

Daily Legislative Update

Wednesday, April 10, 2019

We're at the midway point of Week 15 and the General Assembly is firing on all cylinders as the clock continues to wind down. After tomorrow, standing committees will be in the rear view and conference committees will be the only thing separating legislators from Sine Die. For all of the sports fans out there, consider this the legislative session's 4th quarter, where time is of the essence and every decision made is magnified to the nth degree.

Unlike most Wednesdays, the House will gather for session today given that their committee report deadline expired yesterday afternoon. They'll look to chip away at the laundry list of bills still awaiting 2nd and 3rd reading as the next deadline comes in just 48 hours. The House will need to have all bills that are moving sent through 2nd reading by tomorrow afternoon (4/11). The Senate will need to do the same by next Monday (4/15).

Conference committees are now in full swing and three more are set to meet today. HB 1402, SB 228 and SB 459 each will have it's final opportunity for amending before being sent to Governor Holcomb's desk. To view these meetings in real time, please use the webcast links below.

Along with conference committees, there will be a select few Senate committees on today's agenda. Judiciary, Financial Institutions, Education and Public Policy will meet at 9AM, 1PM and 1:30PM respectively. These too can be viewed by using the Senate Webcast link provided.
