

Daily Legislative Update

Friday, April 19, 2019

There will be no session today nor will the statehouse be open, as all government employees have the day off in observance of Good Friday. The day off is more than welcomed by members of the legislature, but you can be certain they will be working through the weekend. It's rumored that much of the negotiations with regards to the budget have been hammered out and to expect a conference committee report of HB1001 to be released early next week.

The plan for legislators is to have all bills, including the budget, amended and voted out by Wednesday of next week. This would give members an opportunity for "clean up" on Thursday and Sine Die that afternoon. It may seem hard to believe, but 16 weeks of work has ultimately come down to these last few days inside the statehouse, so expect them to run late and reveal lots of twists and turns along the way.
