

Daily Legislative Update

Tuesday, April 23, 2019

The clock continues to wind down on the 2019 legislative session and Monday's completion gives legislators one less day to get bills passed before the scoreboard reads all zeroes. We saw members from both houses jumping in and out of conference committees from the morning hours well into the evening due to the nearly 40 bills that were scheduled. The most notable result of the day was the gaming bill that was amended to, among other things, include mobile sports betting as a component of the legislation. The amended bill will now head back to the House and Senate for final floor approval.

More of the same awaits members of the General Assembly today, with another handful of conference committees set to meet and session for both chambers. As has been the case over the last week or so, caucus meetings will take up much of the time today and moving forward, as members from all four groups will deliberate on which bills should and should not receive the final nod and be sent to Governor Holcomb's desk for signature. Expect this trend to continue until the last gavel falls for Sine Die.

There's the potential for more conference committees to be posted throughout the day, so be sure to follow along by using the link below to view scheduled meet times. The House will again meet for session at 10AM with the Senate following at 1:30PM.
