

Daily Legislative Update

Thursday, January 18, 2018

If you were thinking of picking up a cold six-pack at your local convenient store on the way home....think again. The Senate Public Policy committee voted down the measure 9-1 yesterday. After three hours of testimony, proponents couldn't get the votes needed to send the issue to the full Senate. The issue is dead for the 2018 legislative session.

Today will wrap up a short week of hearings and floor action. Next week is the last full week of committee activity for the first house. Committee report deadlines are fast approaching. They are January 30 in the House and February 1 for the Senate. Floor calendars will start to be lengthier as the first house deadlines draw near.
